

CONTENTS

Contributors • ix

Chapter 1

Similarities Between Chimpanzee and Human Culture • 1

Christophe Boesch

- I. Introduction 1
- II. How We Think About Nature and Culture 2
- III. The Importance of Social Environment in Culture 4
- IV. Prior Experience Affects Sociocultural Cognition 5
- V. Captive Living Conditions Differ 7
- VI. Experiencing Culture in Nature 11
- VII. How Do Chimpanzees Crack Nuts? 13
- VIII. How Do Chimpanzees Eat Ants? 16
- IX. Cumulative Cultural Evolution Among Chimpanzees 18
- X. Symbolic Culture Among Chimpanzees 24
- XI. What About the Future of Primate Culture? 28

Chapter 2

Culture and Neuroplasticity • 38

Shinobu Kitayama, Jiyoung Park, and Yay-hyung Cho

- I. Introduction 38
- II. Conceptual Framework: Linking Culture and the Brain 42
- III. Culture and Psychological Processes: Behavioral and Neural Evidence 47
- IV. Conclusions and Future Directions 83

Chapter 3

Methodological Aspects of Cross-Cultural Research • 101

Fons J. R. van de Vijver

- I. Introduction 101
- II. Equivalence and Bias 103
- III. Multilevel Models 119

- IV. Designs 123
- V. Toward an Integration of Qualitative and Quantitative Procedures: Mixed Methods 130
- VI. The Rapprochement of Qualitative and Quantitative Methods 136
- VII. Conclusion and Outlook 146

Chapter 4

Morality, Development, and Culture • 161

Melanie Killen, Aline Hitti, Shelby Cooley, and Laura Elenbaas

- I. Introduction 161
- II. Developmental Theory and Background 164
- III. Major Concepts of Our Social Reasoning Developmental Model 170
- IV. Social Exclusion: Theory and Research 174
- V. Social Inequalities and Resource Allocation 193
- VI. Reducing Intercultural and Intergroup Prejudice and Enhancing Moral Judgments 204
- VII. Future Directions and Conclusion 208

Chapter 5

The Psychology of Residential and Relational Mobilities • 221

Shigehiro Oishi, Joanna Schug, Masaki Yuki, and Jordan Axt

- I. Introduction 221
- II. What Is the Psychology of Relational Mobility? 227
- III. What Is the Psychology of Residential Mobility? 241
- IV. Important Distinctions Between Residential and Relational Mobility 251
- V. Remaining Questions and Future Directions 253
- VI. Conclusion 259

Chapter 6

Cultural Intelligence: Origins, Conceptualization, Evolution, and Methodological Diversity • 273

Soon Ang, Linn Van Dyne, and Thomas Rockstuhl

- I. Introduction 273
- II. Origins: From Comparative Research to Capability Research 274

- III. Conceptualization: Grounding in Intelligence Research 277
- IV. Evolution: The History of the Cultural Intelligence Research Program 284
- V. Methodological Diversity: A Complementarity Perspective 301
- VI. Conclusion 308

Index • 325