

Contents

Preface	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction: From the Imaginary Look to the Real Gaze	1
PART 1. THE CINEMA OF FANTASY: EXPOSING THE EXCESS
Chapter 1. Fantasy and Showing Too Much	23
Chapter 2. Theoretical Fantasizing	31
Chapter 3. The Politics of Cinematic Fantasy	35
Chapter 4. Early Explorations of Fantasy	39
Chapter 5. The Coldness of Kubrick	43
Chapter 6. Spike Lee's Fantasmatic Explosions	49
Chapter 7. Michael Mann and the Ethics of Excess	57
Chapter 8. The Bankruptcy of Fantasy in Fellini	63
PART 2. THE CINEMA OF DESIRE: ABSENCE AMID THE PLENITUDE OF THE IMAGE
Chapter 9. Desire and Not Showing Enough	69
Chapter 10. Theoretical Desiring	75
Chapter 11. The Politics of Cinematic Desire	79

Chapter 12. The Impossible Object of the Nouvelle Vague	83
Chapter 13. The Banality of Orson Welles	91
Chapter 14. Claire Denis and the Other's Failure to Enjoy	99
Chapter 15. Political Desire in Italian Neorealism	107
PART 3. THE CINEMA OF INTEGRATION: THE MARRIAGE OF DESIRE AND FANTASY
Chapter 16. The Intermixing of Desire and Fantasy	115
Chapter 17. The Theoretical Opposition	123
Chapter 18. The Politics of the Cinema of Integration	127
Chapter 19. The Ordinary Cinema of Ron Howard	131
Chapter 20. Steven Spielberg's Search for the Father	137
Chapter 21. D. W. Griffith's Suspense	147
Chapter 22. Films That Separate	155
PART 4. THE CINEMA OF INTERSECTION: COLLISIONS OF DESIRE AND FANTASY
Chapter 23. The Separation of Desire and Fantasy	163
Chapter 24. Theorizing the Real	171
Chapter 25. The Politics of the Cinema of Intersection	175
Chapter 26. The Overlapping Worlds of Andrei Tarkovsky	179
Chapter 27. Alain Resnais between the Present and the Past	185
Chapter 28. Wim Wenders and the Ethics of Fantasizing	195
Chapter 29. The Sexual Relationship with David Lynch	203
Notes	211
Index	247